

Personal Learning Point 3

In the past 7 months we have been on an intentional learning journey. Creating shared language around social justice leadership topics; to set the groundwork for you as an individual and as a part of the collective to enact truly transformational change. This final learning point will be an exercise in radical imagination.

In order to create this equitable world we must tap into our ability to think beyond what we know to be true. This is the work of Transformative Justice!
